

Dear Sir,

I would support this application for alternative News dissemination. We have seen how fragile high tech services can become, with the recent power blackout of New York and the SoBig-F computer virus. How long will it be, before we see a virus that attacks mobile telephones or satellites? I have a backup system that uses Solar Power supplemented by Gasoline Power. The system uses tube technology and impact printing. This technology is independent of the telephone system, power grid, and resistant to EMP. However the only teletype radio signals I can receive are the propaganda broadcasts from North Korea. Good for testing, but the news is somewhat biased. I have received Mr Hutchison's broadcasts from the previous tests, even here halfway around the world. His efforts should be encouraged. Please consider his request favourably.
